VATICAN CITY, Mar. 13.—(INS)—In the hallowed precincts of the Vatican, strangely silent after the thunderous acclaim of nearly 800,000 of the mighty and the humble gathered reverently from all over the world to watch his public coronation as 261st successor of St. Peter, Pope Pius XII. today turned his skilled attention to practical tasks of the gigantic responsibility of governing the spiritual welfare of 600,000,000 Catholics.

The solemnly impressive ceremony by which Eugenio Cardinal Pacelli was elevated to the throne vacated by the beloved Pius XI whom he had served as Pontifical Secretary of State, was performed in the open for the first time—on the lofty balcony of the benedictions of St. Peter's Basilica.

Well over three quarters of a million spectators jammed the vast cobble area from the steps of the chief house of worship of Christendom to the outer edge of the Bernini Colonades to watch the new Pontiff, with his own hands, place upon his head the triple-crowned tiara symbolizing his spiritual omnipotence.

VATICAN CITY, Mar. 13.—Through Ambassador Joseph Kennedy, Pope Pius XII today sent a special benediction to the people of the United States, following a lengthy conversation, unprecedented in Vatican history for its informality and simplicity.

Suspect in Arsenic Ring May Ask Trial Delay

PHILADELPHIA, Mar. 13.—Milton S. Leidner, counsel for Herman Petrillo, who is slated to stand trial today for murder in the arsenic case, said last night he would make a last-minute move for postponement of the trial or for change of venue.

Publicity in yesterday's Philadelphia newspapers, he said, had affected the case materially since Friday, when Judge Harry H. McDevitt ruled against postponement.

Judge McDevitt held Friday that he himself had not read a line of the reports of Petrillo's indictment, with three others, in the asserted poisoning of four persons for their insurance, and guaranteed a "fair and impartial jury trial."

Leidner contended these reports, characterizing Petrillo as the "reputed leader of the arsenic ring," prejudiced the public so no impartial jury could be chosen.

Last night Leidner said: "It appears the District Attorney's office, police authorities and secret service agents of the Federal Government have given the newspapers certain information which, when relayed to the public through the press, will prejudice the defendant's rights and deprive him of the presumption of innocence, so he will be unable to get an impartial and fair trial."

"This is especially true in view of the fact that certain pictures from the rogues' gallery and official information have been incorporated in the articles. This is absolutely inadmissible in the trial of the case unless offered by the defense."

Leidner said if his motion is denied, the case will come to trial today before Judge McDevitt in Quarter Sessions Court, Room 453, City Hall. At that time he will demand that Petrillo be tried alone and not with the three others indicted with him.

These are Petrillo's cousin Paul, charged with conspiracy to murder and defraud insurance companies of $20,000, and Mrs. Corina Pavato and Mrs. Stella Alfonsi, widows of two of the four asserted arsenic victims, charged with murder.

Italy's Fortification of Several Key Islands Along Yemen Coast Violates Treaty

SEND LARGE SUPPLIES

(Note: International News Service presents the fourth and last of a series of articles dealing with the situation prevailing today in Abyssinia, French Somaliland, and the Yemen, based on authoritative information reaching London.—I. N. S.)

LONDON, Mar. 13.—(INS)—Large supplies of arms are being sent by Italy to the Imam Yahya, ruler of the Yemen, the strategically important Arab State at the southern end of the Red Sea coast of Arabia, according to authoritative word reaching London today.

Despite the fact the arms are being sold at ridiculously low prices, transactions involving two and a half million dollars have been completed in the past three months, it is declared. According to the same advices, Italy is being permitted to fortify several of the important islands along the Yemen coast, which dominate the entrance and exit to the Red Sea and are a serious threat to British and French naval prestige in that area.

At least one of these islands, according to these reports, is being very heavily fortified with long-range guns, while another is being converted into an air base from which Italian war planes would easily be able to reach Aden, the great British fortress and naval station dominating that area.

Despite the fact the Italian Government promised, in the Anglo-Italian Agreement signed a few months ago, not to attempt to seek a privileged political position in the Yemen, it is asserted that the Imam recently has come completely under Italian influence. His personal physician is an Italian, while several of his advisors are said to be Italian specialists.

In addition, Italy is alleged to have sent officers and non-commissioned officers to the Yemen. They have been "loaned" free to the Imam until such time as the Arabs have become familiar.

Mibs For All Ages

(By "The Stroller") One sure sign of Spring's approach is the marble game that takes place these days on every street, in every back yard, and vacant lot.

With the arrival of seven o'clock, one night this week, in spite of the darkness, four or five lads were observed trying to keep their eyes on the "mibs" by means of a nearby street light.

We also heard of one tot less than six years of age playing marbles with a neighbor in his sixties. Well, men are but boys grown up.

Here and There in Bucks County Towns

For the purpose of stimulating interest among the fruit growers in the county, a membership committee composed of Robert Kleppinger, of Washington Crossing; Roy Benner, Perkaskie, and E. W. Haldean, this place, was appointed at the 15th annual meeting of the Bucks County Fruit Growers' Association held in the Administration Building, at Doylestown.

Although there were about 35 people in attendance, 12 of whom were members of the junior horticultural class of the National Farm School, there were less than 10 members of the group present. County Agent William P. Greenwalt stated that there are at least 30 fruit growers, with 20 acres or more in Bucks county, who should be members.

Flower gardeners had a rare treat when Dr. R. S. Kirby, plant pathologist, gave a talk on horticulture, illustrated with colored motion pictures at the ladies' night meeting of the Doylestown Rotary Club at Doylestown Inn, when 90 members and women were present.

Dr. Kirby's microscopic pictures of the beautiful flowers of home gardens, the pests that attack them, how they grow, what they do to the plants, how they are perpetuated and how they may be eradicated.

In the talk Dr. Kirby explained and illustrated the simple measures that can be taken to prevent mildew, rust, rot and so forth, and the disaster that will result if war is not made on these things that live on plants because they have no way to provide their own means of sustenance. "Too many plants on one root system" was the terse explanation made by Dr. Kirby of the damage they do.

Important factors to be considered in horticulture, he said, are soil, varieties, pruning and pest control.

The Branch Valley Fish, Game and Forestry Association, at its monthly meeting in Fraternity Temple, Perkaskie, authorized the appointment of a committee to investigate the possibilities of acquiring a 90-acre tract of land near Perkaskie, to be developed as a game and fish propagating site and to further the reforestation plans of the club as well as to provide eventually, a site for a permanent home for the club. The site is ideally located and adapted for the purposes of the club. The committee appointed by president Dr. W. W. Bonney, is comprised of Nelson O. Fretz, chairman; Attorney Robert H. Grim, Leon Sterner, Lester Frederick and Claude Renner.

Electric Company Submitted to the Sellersville-Perkasie Joint Board a Personal Plan for the Flood-lighting of the school athletic field. The tentative estimate of the cost would be approximately $1545 for the equipment, exclusive of the installation which was estimated at $500.

"The installation figure does not take into account the use of the present poles on the grounds," said A. J. Shelmor, of the Crowder Company, Perkasie Borough Council had made overtures for co-operation in the installation and the Joint Board's athletic committee is planning a meeting with the council in the near future to secure a closer understanding of the work.

Prof. Lewis N. Snyder pointed out that a flood-lighted field might be used for community events as well as football, citing at least a half dozen types of events that could be staged at night time out of doors.

W. H. Erdman of the Westinghouse Electric Co. stated that the plan calls for 32 lights with provision for the addition of eight more at a cost of $100.

"I am sure," he said, "that you will quickly add the additional lights if the history of athletic field lighting holds true here because the initial cost is often paid for in one season."

SENTENCES 150 YEARS AGO WERE VERY HARSH

Many Prisoners Were Required to Stand in Pillory for Whippings

JUDGE BOYER'S PAPER

MORRISVILLE, Mar. 13.—Sentences in the Bucks County courts may seem severe at times to those convicted of crimes but they are mild when compared to some of those imposed in 1780, when, according to a paper prepared some time ago by Judge Calvin S. Boyer, now one of the judges of Bucks County, "impresses us as being brutal in their severity."

According to Judge Boyer's paper, Peter Heaton was convicted in June, 1780, in the Bucks County Court of larceny and the judge sentenced the prisoner to stand in the pillory one hour, and that he be whipped with 39 lashes and at the same time have his ears cut off and nailed to the pillory. It was further decreed that the above punishment be inflicted between 12 and three in the afternoon, and that the prisoner pay the costs and make restitution.

Many other interesting incidents are related in Judge Boyer's paper, among which are the fact that the offense of assault and battery predominated in the early days, the number of bills charging that crime being prominent.

THE GREAT GAME OF POLITICS

By FRANK R. KENT

(Copyright, 1938, by The Baltimore Sun)

A Question of Irritation

Washington, Mar. 11. THE split which has developed among the President's close advisers in connection with the vastly advertised Administration drive for business recovery is interesting and illuminating. One one side are the conservatives—some of them very recently converted—who conceived the movement and are managing it. On the other are the "intellectual liberals" of the "inner circle," fundamentally opposed to any conciliation or concessions to business. Between the two there is, at the moment, a wide gap and intense bitterness.

TO THIS END they privately appeal to critics of the New Deal not to use the words "business appeasement" in describing the effort. It has been further requested that if and when the appeasement advocates succeed in getting Mr. Roosevelt to indorse their tax and economy plans and acquiesce in less governmental spending, he be not "taunted" as having had to acknowledge his errors, as being in retreat or having retracted anything. If he does thus indorse and acquiesce, he undoubtedly will have done all those things. But there are whispered warnings from the cautious conservatives

Nazi Coup Imminent

Prague, Mar. 13.—A Nazi German coup to "liberate" Germans and Slovaks in Czechoslovakia appeared imminent today. All efforts for local settlement of Slovak autonomy demands were abandoned as the German press screamed for an instant end to alleged "terrorism and oppression" in Slovakia, and numerous clashes brought partisan feeling to the boiling point.

In Vienna, Dr. Ferdinand Durcinsky, fugitive Slovak minister of communications, and chief exponent of an independent Slovakia, cut off from administration by Prague, broadcast: "The historic moment of decision is near, the moment for liberation of Slovakia under the protection of Adolf Hitler will soon come."

After surveying all developments, best informed circles in Prague believed there was no longer any hope of retaining Slovakia in the Czech-Slovak Republic as created under the Munich four-power pact agreement.

Meanwhile, Herr Murjos, political chief of the Hilinko, has already decided to intervene.

63RD ANNIVERSARY OF GRANGE IS ARRANGED

Dinner to Mark Date on Last Saturday in March at Langhorne

UNIQUE ROLL CALL

LANGHORNE, Mar. 13.—The 63rd anniversary meeting and dinner of Middletown Grange will be conducted in the Memorial House, here, on the evening of Saturday, March 25th, and in anticipation of this event, several members have been named to assist the women's work committee in outlining plans.

At a meeting, held in Friends school house, Wednesday evening, a large number of those affiliated with the local Grange were present.

The chairman of women's work committee, Mrs. H. C. Terry, will be aided in arrangements for the anniversary by Dr. H. C. Terry, Jesse G. Webster, Andrew Hibbs, Russell Newbold and Oscar Johnson.

Quarterly meeting of Lower Bucks and Philadelphia Pomona Grange, No. 22, held recently in Wycombe, was reported upon by Mrs. Oscar Johnson and Edwin E. Ridge.

Members were informed that a regional conference on grange leadership will be held at the headquarters of Tyro Hall Grange, Buckingham, Wednesday morning and afternoon, March 15. During the meeting this week five applications for membership were received.

The literary program at the conclusion of the business session was in charge of the lecturer, Mrs. R. Walker Jackson. During the roll call the members told of some new things they would like to have. The men mentioned anything from a new horse or cow to a carload of lime. Most of the women said they wanted new paint or paper and only one expressed a desire for new clothes. One veteran member recalled that March 12 marks the anniversary of the blizzard of 1888 and he said he certainly would not want a blizzard at this time of the year.

Quotations made by eight prominent farmers were given by the members. These farmers included George Washington, John Deere, Cyrus McCormack, James Read, Stephen Babcock, William Saunders, Gifford Pinchot and Joseph Wing.

Members discussed in a humorous vein the question, "What do you think of our Grange having a tour and at what time of the year should it be taken and where should we go?" This was followed by a reading, "Men," by Mrs. Henry C. Pickering and the playing of games appropriate to St. Patrick's Day.

Fickle Weather Here During The Week-End

Fickle March weather certainly dealt up a varied dish of weather for this section over the week-end.

Beginning Saturday noon there was snow, then rain which continued throughout yesterday and during last night. During the early morning hours the rain changed to snow and then the weather cleared.

Colder weather today was expected to alleviate flood fears felt in several States by its rain squalls during the week-end, but in other sections of the country there remained unpleasant reminders of heavy snowfalls and blinding dust storms.

The squalls struck parts of West Virginia, Ohio, Kentucky, Indiana, Illinois and Iowa, and in other sections of those states and in Michigan snow, hail and rain were lashed out by the elements.

While Northeastern United States was buried under one of the area's heaviest snowfalls of the Winter, in the southwest the prolonged dry spell brought on another duster, which swept up from Texas through some of Oklahoma and Kansas and into Missouri.

All parts of the nation but the Far West suffered from freakish week-end weather of one kind or another.

The storm which brought snow to Boston and most of the northeast, changed to sleet, hail or rain in its tail, which reached far down the Atlantic coast. In New York the week-end brought snow, sleet and rain, leaving the streets slushy and dangerous. Streets were slick, too, in Chicago and other Mid-West cities, where a sleetish snow made the going precarious for motor traffic.

Identify Man Killed On Railroad; Was Philadelphian

CORNWELLS HEIGHTS, Mar. 13.—The body of a man found along the tracks of the Pennsylvania Railroad, early Friday morning, was identified yesterday by a sister of the deceased.

The victim was Frederick Haas, 76, of 619 Elkins avenue, West Olney, Philadelphia. He was identified by his sister, Mrs. Barbara Schuck, with whom he made his home. Mrs. Schuck made identification through clothing, the wallet and watch which were found on his person.

Burial had been made Saturday in Bristol Cemetery. Disinterment will occur this week, with funeral service to be followed by burial in Cheltenham Churchyard at the convenience of the family.

The mangled body was found Friday morning, at Andalusia, and it was determined that the man had been struck by a Washington-bound train, the night previous, evidence being found upon arrival of the train in the capital city. The body was removed to the funeral home of Harold H. Haefner, here.

Mrs. Schuck stated that her brother had been in the habit of taking long walks, but never remained away from home overnight. She reported to Philadelphia police that he had been missing two days, and Pennsylvania Motor Police were also informed. Relatives of Haas read in newspapers the description of the man who met his death at Andalusia, and came here with officers and Bucks County deputy coroner, Dr. James P. Lawler, to make identification. The victim was a widower.

TWO LEAVE HOSPITALS

FOUR CENTURIES

Architecture is a branch of art which receives all too little comment by critics or the general public. Yet some of the most enduring expressions of the human mind at its best are buildings. The Parthenon, the Taj Mahal, the cathedrals of Rheims and Chartres, the colonial churches and homes of New England and the deep South, the thrilling upward-sweeping 100-story skyscrapers, vie in the beauty contest with the sculptures of Phidias and Praxiteles, the paintings of Rubens and Titian, the poetry of Homer and Milton.

We are prone to think of our own country as new and raw in this field; it may be a surprise to many of us to learn that American architecture boasts a history which goes back more than 400 years. The Museum of Modern Art in New York is holding an exhibition of four centuries of American architecture. Many of the early motives were frankly borrowed from the Greek, Roman, Gothic and Baroque periods, but in the last two centuries strictly American architectural styles have been created. These are outgrowths of the American way of living and thinking, and duplicated nowhere else on earth. In the present age, under the influence of such men as Frank Lloyd Wright, Henry Hobson Richardson, Louis Sullivan, Stanford White and many others, the work of Americans has challenged the world.

The structures erected by Americans hundreds of years ago speak to us of the life of preceding centuries. So, too, will many buildings of this day tell to future generations something of the story of the middle of the twentieth century.

CALLS FOR MENTALLY FIT

Most school systems automatically bar applicants for positions as teachers who are suffering from infectious disease or physical deformity but they grant without hesitation licenses to men and women who are so unbalanced emotionally that they are "destructive and insidious" in influences on children.

That is a charge made by Dr. Frank J. O'Brien, president of the American Psycho-psychiatric Association. In his address, Dr. O'Brien declared that the most important problem facing educators today was the proper selection of individual to teaching posts. He said, "Although the destructive influence of emotionally unbalanced teachers on the personalities of young children is evident, yet at the present time, it is almost impossible to remove the mentally sick teacher, sometime even when the teacher is psychotic."

The emotionally disturbed teacher is a menace to classrooms. There should be a clear and practical analysis of the personality qualities of the teacher, to supplement the scholarship requirements. The newest ideas in education embody not only the teaching of the rudiments of knowledge but also, and fundamentally, the proper adjustment of the individual to society.

It has been noted that too little is said of the Pilgrim Mothers, who had to put up with the Pilgrim Fathers. And many of us learned for the first time lately that there was a Mrs. Tom Mooney.

In one issue of The Billboard, theatrical weekly, three crooners are advertised as at liberty. The usual descriptions are offered, but no reward.

ECHOES OF THE PAST

By Courier Staff Member

Review of the news as it appeared in the Bucks County Gazette issue dated at Bristol Aug. 16, 1877. The Gazette, a weekly newspaper published in Bristol, was discontinued following its merger with the Courier.

The following items are taken from The Bucks County Gazette of August 16, 1877:

Quite a large number of people were attracted to the banks of the Delaware on Tuesday evening by the announcement of a tub race about to take place. After waiting a short time the spectators were rewarded for their patience by witnessing one tub after another paddling out to position, and when the word was given to start, Alec Stewart, Wilfred Johnson, Curtis Panton, William Laing, Walter Bache, C. W. Taylor, and Ernest Peirson pushed off boldly from the water works wharf enroute for the wharf above. They had not proceeded far when all the tubs were upside down but three, and the progress of these was watched with great interest by all except the unfortunates who were struggling in the water with their unwieldy capsize craft. As the three contestants neared the wharf, Johnson was ahead, Stewart next, and Panton, who had pushed out into the stream to get the benefit of the current, last. Now they came on the home stretch, Johnson had got out of his tub to turn it around, but was soon back again, and although the others had a little the start of him, he started off vigorously and looked as if he would come in victor, when he lost his balance, waved his hand a moment in the air, and the moment after made a plunge overboard, thus reducing the contestants to Panton and Stewart. "Curt" paddled rapidly and gained on Alec, for a little while, but became wearied as the latter leisurely came in the victor. Afterwards a swimming match took place, participated in by the same parties, in which William Laing was victorious.

MORRISVILLE—An accident which might have resulted seriously, happened to George Peze one day this week. He and Adam Patterson were engaged in hauling straw for D. P. Stackhouse. When the load was on the wagon, George went to the back part to assist in backing it out of the barn, and the wagon and contents came back on him, and when extricated he was nearly exhausted.

Several in this vicinity are suffering with sore hands—some with felons, others with frogs in their hands.

Mr. J. Robertson, baker, has removed to Trenton, and the bakery has been rented by Mr. Gilton, who has not as yet commenced baking.

The burgess and council met as a committee of the whole at John's Pond, opposite the Grove, yesterday morning, to determine upon some plan to abate the nuisance occasioned by the stagnant water in that vicinity. All the members were present with the exception of William Lauderbough. After viewing the ground and hearing the suggestions of a number of citizens who were present, it was determined to employ a civil engineer to submit plans and furnish estimates of the cost of a general system of sewage for the borough. Temporary relief will be afforded by opening a drain on Pond street to carry the water emptying into that street down Pond, and thus prevent the drainage into the pond for which complaint was made.

A flight of canary birds took place from a third story room of Jacob McDiern's house on Wednesday morning. Mr. McDiern had somewhere in the neighborhood of 100 of these little pets turned out loose in the room, and in some manner the wire netting at the window had a hole knocked in it, and about 30 of the birds escaped and are doubtless flying about the neighborhood somewhere, rejoicing in the freedom which will probably cause their death as they are not hardy enough to bear the exposure of this climate.

Among the passengers on the "City of Berlin" which sailed from New York for Liverpool on Saturday last, were Misses M. C. Newton and Julia E. Wright, who were teachers at Miss Merriam's school last term. They, with eight other ladies under charge of Rev. George E. Ferguson and wife, are on their way to Wellington Cape Colony, South Africa, where they will combine the instruction of the natives in English with missionary work, and also act as teachers to the children of English colonists.

that if that fact is publicly stressed, it will irritate the President, and, if he becomes irritated, nothing can be done with him. They literally say precisely that.

ON THE other hand, the advanced thinkers of the White House encourage, with whom the President is more personally congenial, are doing their level best to irritate him to the point of blocking the whole business-recovery program, in which they completely disbelieve. It is their view, which they earnestly communicate to Mr. Roosevelt, that the plans prepared by the Treasury group, and which he is asked to approve, involve an ignoble surrender. They are begging him now, as they did last December when he was about to turn Right, "not to let the people down."

Glamor Girl Hedy, New Mate

Hedy Lamarr and, inset, Gene Markey

Surprising even her closest friends, Hedy Lamarr, Viennese beauty now considered Hollywood's most glamorous actress, and Gene Markey, producer and former husband of Joan Bennett, eloped to Mexico, to say "I do." Miss Lamarr formerly was the wife of an Austrian munitions manufacturer.

Now, as then, that plea is very potent with Mr. Roosevelt.

IT IS being backed up by the argument that to acquiesce in or support the outright repeal of the capital-gains and undivided-surplus taxes will be to stultify himself. To lend himself now to a reduction of governmental expenses and a slowing down of Federal pump priming is to repudiate his own position taken in his message to Congress last January. More—it is held that to turn in the direction desired by his Treasury advisers and Mr. Hopkins, whom some of his former "liberal" friends now call a renegade, is to play the Tory game and put himself in the hands of sinister interests equally keen to destroy him and his policies. Those are the arguments.

IT IS a queer state of affairs. Here we have one set of Presidential advisers desperately trying to keep the President from being irritated in order to induce him to sanction the things it believes should be done. And here is another set doing its damndest to divert him from these things by making them as irritating as possible. Altogether it is not a very pretty picture of the President presented by this competition among his friends on the subject of his irritability.

It makes him appear a shallow, vain man, who has to be coddled and cajoled into adopting a course, no matter how sound, different from the one he has been pursuing. It makes him seem a man whose acts are dictated by emotion rather than reason. Looked at from a detached point of view, this struggle now going on around him does not increase confidence in the concrete results of the "recovery drive."

FASHION PARADE

By Orry-Kelly
(Famous Hollywood Stylist Writing For International News Service)
HOLLYWOOD—(INS)—Since Hollywood has gone into the business of producing period pictures with such gusto no one influences the screen designer more than himself. By alternating pictures laid in other days with modern stories designers naturally carry the influence of the costume films into the clothes they do for today's heroine.

Examples of this "self-influence" are frequent in my own designing career. After doing the wide-skirted gowns Bette Davis wore in "Jezebel" I couldn't resist making use of the silhouette for an evening gown Olivia de Havilland wears in "Wings of the Navy." In "The Sisters" Bette Davis' wardrobe featured the lavish use of fur, wasp waists, and emphasized shoulders. Unconsciously I thought in the same terms for her "Dark Victory" wardrobe. No doubt the clothes she is currently wearing in "Juarez" will be reflected in her next modern picture.

From the millinery he designed for "The Adventures of Robin Hood" Milo Anderson received the idea for modern wimples and high-crowned hats to be used in subsequent pictures. Since working on the bustle period of "Doge City" he caught himself doing a large number of dresses having back fullness for Jane Bryan to wear in "Each Dawn I Die." Having just completed the Technicolor feature, "Sons of Liberty," laid in the days of 1776, Milo Anderson is doing up-to-date fashions, inspired by those of colonial dames.

An historic example of past period influencing the designer who brought it to life is Adrian's revival of the Empress Eugenie hat on Greta Garbo. He was the first to see its modern possibilities. It was also he who saw how the little cap Norma Shearer wore in "Romeo and Juliet" could be carried over into the twentieth century.

Sometimes the star is so influenced by period clothes she wears on the screen that she helps to revive it in her personal wardrobe. After making "Mary, Queen of Scots," Katherine Hepburn went shopping for bolts of plaid. Olivia de Havilland copied the Empire mode in an evening dress after she had worn the style in "Anthony Adverse." Anita Louise turned into a Gibson Girl off-screen as well as on before she had completed her role in "The Sisters."

But it's the designer who most frequently steals his own ideas.

Shopkeepers and others, who may want by the piece or package, will please to leave orders with Nathaniel Hazard, No. 51, Water-Street. Jan. 12.

In January, 1789, George Washington wanted some broadcloth for "a suit of cloaths." Scanning the pages of the New York Advertiser, he found the above advertisement. So he commissioned his friend, Major General Henry Knox, to purchase the broadcloth for him and send it to Mount Vernon. This is just one of the historical facts that show that George Washington was a shrewd buyer and a good business man.

ON THE SCREENS

GRAND

Culminating two years of intensive research and six months of actual filming, Darryl F. Zanuck's production, "Jesse James," 20th Century-Fox's spectacular drama of the nation's most famous outlaw and the turbulent events that gave him to the world, came yesterday, in brilliant Technicolor, to the screen of the Grand Theatre.

In this epic story of a lawless era we are given a true and stirring picture of the most colorful outlaw that ever lived. For in "Jesse James" the almost legendary figure is portrayed by Tyrone Power exactly as he was—neither all good nor all bad, a brave and tender husband to the girl who married him, a victim of injustice to the simple folk who knew him and, to the people who hated him, an outlaw and a killer.

BRISTOL

Blondie, Dagwood and Baby Dumpling will step out of Chic Young's popular comic strip onto the screen of the Bristol Theatre today in Columbia's "Blondie." This is the initial picturization of the foibles and misadventures of the Bumstead clan in a projected series based on the Chic Young "funnies."

Penny Singleton, vivacious young musical comedy star, will be seen in the title role with Arthur Lake, a perfect "Dagwood Bumstead," as her irrepressible young husband. In the role of Baby Dumpling is four-year-old Larry Simms, a chubby little performer who bears a remarkable resemblance to his mischievous comic strip counterpart.

RITZ THEATRE, CROYDON

Since Bing Crosby is a great believer in the old saw about the one good turn, lovely Shirley Ross, the blonde-haired songbird to whom a trouble-ridden world is indebted for recent renditions of "Thanks for the Memory," shares stellar honors with him in his latest comedy offering, "Paris Honeymoon," today at the Ritz Theatre.

Miss Ross will be remembered, among other things, for her splendid performance opposite Bing in his film, "Waikiki Wedding" in which she did three good turns—"Sweet Is the Word for You," "In a Little Hula Heaven" and "Blue Hawaii." It was the way in which she delivered which convinced Bing that she deserved a repeat performance. "Paris Honeymoon" is it.

Hartzell-Cronhamel Post, American Legion, of Perkasie, will erect a new home at a cost of $6,000.

The Legionnaires voted to take the action last night. The session was held in Fraternity Temple, the regular meeting place of the post.

Some time ago, the organization purchased a lot at Fifth and Park avenue, in the Menlo Park section of Perkasie, with plans for a building project at some future date.

Thirty-one men were present at the meeting when the step in the direction of establishing a permanent home was made. George Hetherington was in charge of the meeting.

The committee appointed to launch the project is comprised of George Spellman, Paul Sine, Ralph Keller, and Charles Daub. This group will report back at the next meeting, giving an outline of what can be accomplished for $6,000 in the way of a new structure.

Ray Hemmerly, commander of the Ninth District of the American Legion, was a guest at the post meeting.

MCCARTHY WORRYING OVER NEW YORK YANKEES

By James L. Kilgallen
I. N. S. Sports Writer
ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., Mar. 13.—(INS)—It's really too bad. Here is Joe McCarthy of the New York Yankees, managing what is conceded to be the greatest team in baseball and nearly everybody's pick to win the 1939 American League flag—and yet he's worrying!

Worrying about the good ball players he can't play in the regular line-up because his regulars are just too good.

"I'd worry if I were 30 games ahead," smiled McCarthy when asked about this said situation. "I'd be afraid some team would catch us and that they'd say we were yellow."

By the looks of his ball team, in training here, McCarthy is almost sure to be posing with the dignitaries at the home plate when the opening of another world's series rolls around. The Yankees have class—and everything else.

The class shows even in the way they emerge from the clubhouse to do their training. They prance out like the Yale football team about to meet the army before 75,000 people. They dash around the park twice to limber up, quickly get into their positions and go through a drill that delights the fans. They draw the biggest crowds in the grapefruit circuit.

McCarthy sat in the dugout today and looked out at such great ball players as Joe Di Maggio, Lou Gehrig, Bill Dickey, Tom Henrich and Joe Gordon. And then his eyes fell on some other fellows, not yet well known, but who look awfully, awfully good to Joe. And he sighed. Such rookies!

"Look at that Joe Gallagher," said McCarthy, pointing to a 210 pounder, six feet two inch tall who was belting the ball out into the trees back of center field. "What a man! You should see his wrists. They are twice the size of mine. He hit .343 for Kansas City last year."

"Look at that Charlie Keller! Another outfielder. He hit .365 at Newark last year. He was one of the best hitters in the International League. Gallagher was second best hitter in the American Association last year."

"Will I play these fellows as regulars? Well, now. That's a question. You see there are a lot of other good outfielders out there."

Sure enough, there was Di Maggio shagging flies in center, looking as if he were in mid-season form. And big George Selkirk and Tommy Heinrich.

A strapping youngster went up to hit. "Look at that Rosar," suggested McCarthy. "There is a peach of a youngster, a fine catcher and a great hitter. He led the International League in batting last year, hitting .387 for Newark."

The regular Yankee first string catcher, Bill Dickey, followed Rosar at bat and belted a few line drives. "Ah, that Dickey!" sighed McCarthy.

GAME POSTPONED

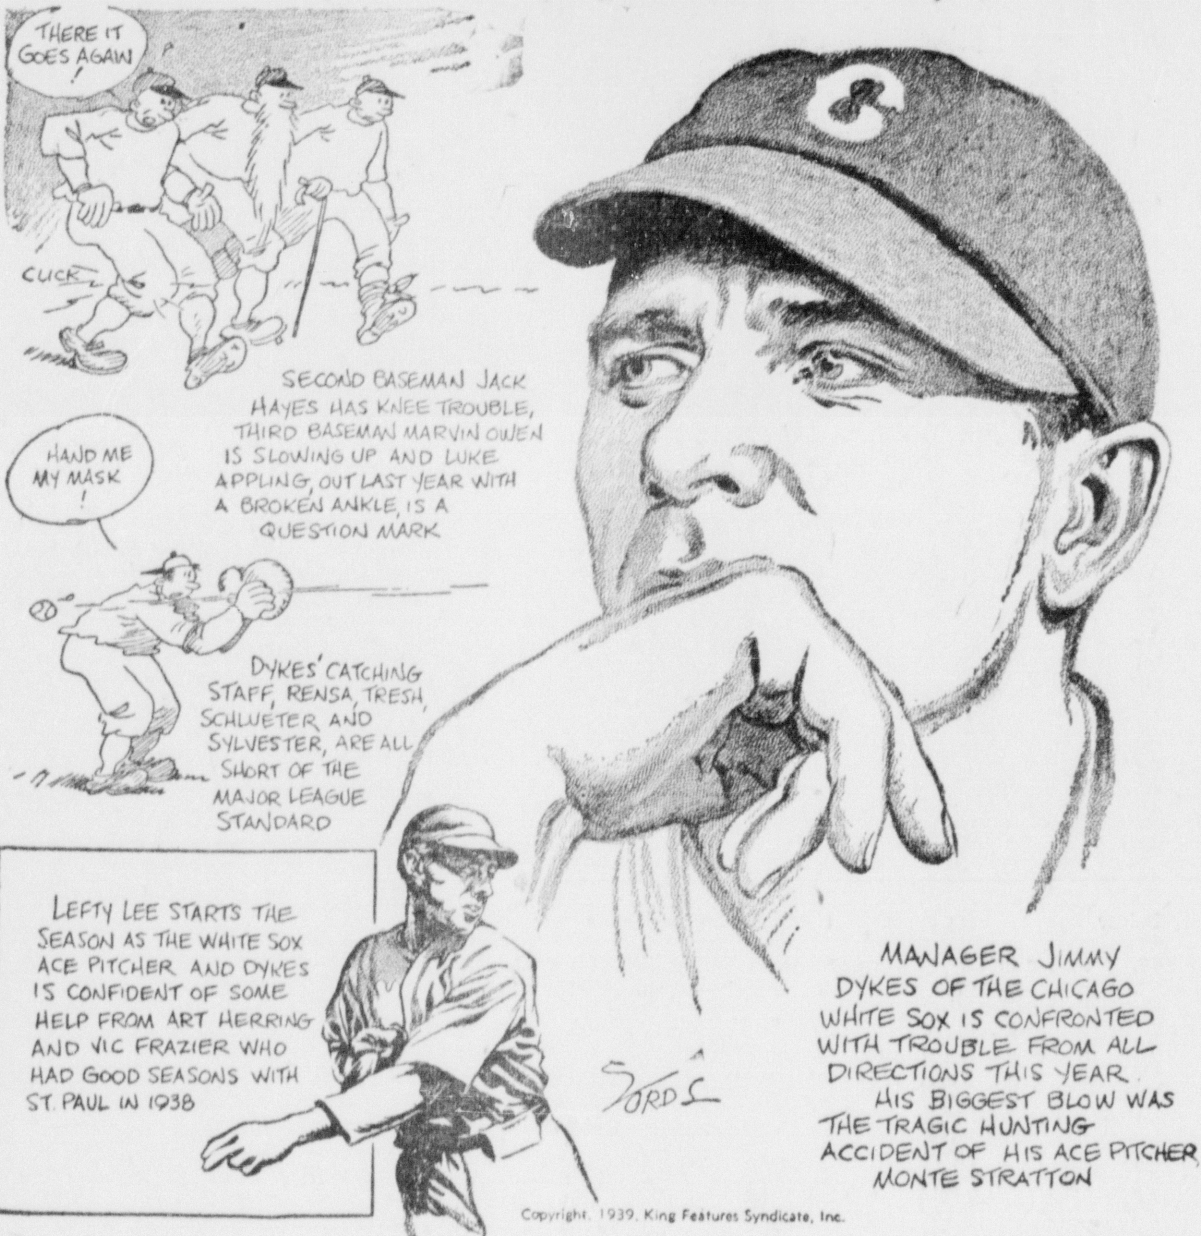

The second annual Bristol Faculty-Alumni basketball game scheduled to be played on the local high school court this evening at eight o'clock has been indefinitely postponed. This announcement was made by the coach of the Faculty team, Mr. Bruce Gillard. Details for the cancelling of the tilt were lacking as Mr. Gillard gave no reason for the postponement.

TROUBLE AHEAD FOR DYKES - By Jack Sords

Pope, Following Coronation, Turns To Practical Tasks

800,000 spectators from all over the world, Pope Plus disrupted his entire schedule to receive Ambassador and Mrs. Kennedy and eight of their children.

Audiences with special diplomatic envoys from Britain, Germany, Yugoslavia and Bulgaria, were brushed aside to enable the historic meeting between the Pontiff and the American representative.

Pope Plus lost no time in expressing to Kennedy his deep interest in the welfare and prosperity of the United States. He said he considered himself most fortunate to have had a visit to the United States and there to have met so many important clergymen and laity. The Pontiff told Kennedy that it gave him great happiness to have traveled in America and described this as a visit which he would "cherish for my lifetime."

Pope Plus abandoned tradition by rising from his chair and walking across the room to greet Kennedy warmly when the audience began. The two had not met since Kennedy introduced the new Secretary of State, Cardinal Pacelli to President Roosevelt in 1936 and later entertained him in the United States.

Italian Intrigues Menace British far with the use of the Italian equipment, according to the reports.

The arms transactions are declared to have been made by an Italian company under the control of the Italian Government. Arms and ammunition, including guns of heavy caliber, have been landed from Italian vessels at Hodeidah, the Yemen Red Sea port.

The same company, it is alleged, has been able to carry out an economic penetration in the Yemen, and its agents have made effective contact with the Arab chiefs from the military and political point of view.

At Sana, the Yemen capital, Italian influence is declared to be most marked. German influence also is declared to be considerable.

One result of this penetration is seen in the fact that much of the Yemen trade, hitherto conducted through British-owned Aden, is now being handled through Hodeidah by Italian and German companies.

portionately far greater than they are today. Next in number were crimes of sex immorality, which were far in excess of those today, but this may be due to the difference in moral standards.

In June, 1780, there were also a number of cases in which the crime was called "keeping school." The real offense consisted of teaching school without having taken allegiance to the new Government. The punishment in two cases was a fine of $2,500, and then those accused were forced to post a bond of $20,000 for their good behavior for a period of 12 months.

The records also show that the courts were lenient at times, as is shown of a case where a man was accused of assault and battery and he was fined one shilling, or 25 cents.

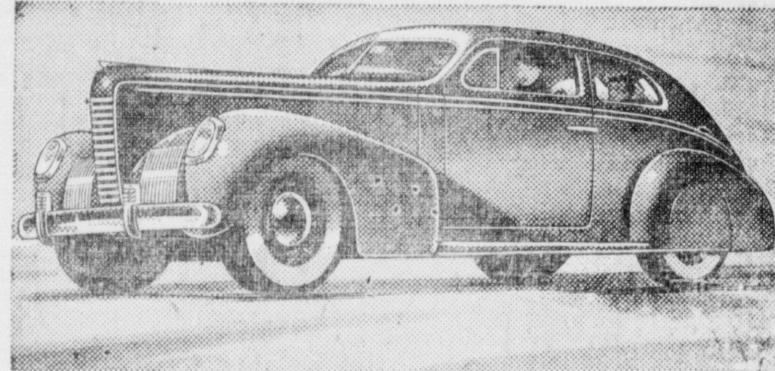

The old records also reveal that the first court house, or the Court of Justice, as it was called, was in Penna Manor, a few miles below Morrisville. That was in 1863 and the place was then known as "Crookthorn." In 1705 it was moved to Bristol because of the complaints that the court at Crookthorn was too far removed from the center of population and was inconvenient to the people of the settled portion of the county.

Twenty years later the court house was removed to Newtown, as being the geographical center of the then settled portion of the county.

In 1724 an Act of Assembly was passed providing that land be purchased in Newtown and buildings be erected there at a cost not to exceed $1,500. The tract was purchased in 1725 and the court house and prison were erected.

After 81 years the courts were transferred to Doylestown and a court house erected on the present site there in 1813. The present building was erected in 1877.
